COURT-HOUSE CLEANINGS

Fined For Fighting.

On complaint of S. G. Sherrard, Justice Amos yesterday issued a warrant for Alva Hawkins, proprietor of the Opera House Restaurant, charging him with unlawfully striking Sherrard. The two men got into an argument in the restaurant and Hawkins hit the other man, but each one had his own story to tell. The defendant admitted that he had struck the kick and he paid a fine of five and costs.

Later Patrolman Hess came into Justice Amos' office this afternoon and, waiving a hearing, gave bond of $500 to await the action of the grand jury.

Anarchist and Beggar.

A misunderstanding of the English language caused two Italians to fail to get naturalization papers this morning. The first one up had answered most of the questions and shoved himself to be well informed in relation to our government. Finally Judge Kendall asked him, "What is an anarchist?" "Washington," was the reply and the man was ordered away without his papers.

The next one would have passed but the question was asked, "What is a beggar?" "Roosevelt" was the answer and he too will have to apply at some future time.

Hearing Not Given.

The hearing of Warren Blaney was not given this afternoon because of the absence of his lawyer, Mr. Vincent. He will likely remain in jail until after the action of the grand jury.

THE STAGE

Paul Gilmore.

So many false alarm dramatic "hits" and "great successes" are waited to us from the great American metropolis that our theatre-going people cannot be blamed for looking with an eye of suspicion upon the preliminary announcements of many of the attractions making a bid for their patronage during a theatrical season. It is a pleasure, therefore, for the writer of things dramatic, who makes an honest effort to keep his readers posted on the more meritorious, and consequently deserving attractions, to conscientiously recommend the same. Such a one is "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," which is to be seen in this city on next Saturday at the Grand Opera House, presented by an unusually strong cast, headed by Paul Gilmore. Mr. Gilmore is a sterling young actor who has most gracefully stepped from leading romantic roles into the realm of modern English comedy, and in the role of Lord "Jack" Lumley, Mr. Gilmore gives a decidedly polished and forceful presentation of the husband, whose scientific and self-centered tendencies lead his wife, Lady Lumley, to seek her own amusements and thereby almost fall a victim to the wiles of the evil Italian literature, the "Humming Bird." Saturday night will be the last opportunity that local theatregoers will have to see this talented young actor and his clever supporting company in this wonderfully successful play, as Mr. Gilmore's vehicle for next season will be a new production. Prices $1.50, $1.00, 75, 50 and 25 cents.

"THE TWO JOHNS."

Miss Nan Hewins who plays the part of Mrs. Peter Johns in "The Two Johns" which will be at the Grand Opera House next Wednesday, October 26th, tells of an interesting experience she had while playing in St. Louis recently. At the request of an old darkey who had been a servant in her family years before, she attended a colored church one Sunday. This old darkey was a deacon and one of the staunch pillars of the church. In the midst of a long prayer just before the sermon the preacher snapped his fingers once or twice most audibly, so much so that it attracted the attention of some of his congregation. The goodly deacon being a little deaf on the pulpit side, did not hear it, and Miss Hewins being a little inquisitive explained the occurrence to her old friend and asked the reason of it.

As soon as the congregation was dismissed the deacon went up to the preacher and said:

"Elder, I noticed that during your prayer yo' snapped yo' fingers twice and some of yo' congregation would like to know the meaning of it."

"I recollect it, Deacon Johnson," the preacher replied, "I recollect it very well. It just done come to me who put that blue chip in the collection basket last Sunday."

"Girls Will Be Girls."

Mary Karr, who appears as the spinster principal of Dodge Academy in "Girls Will Be Girls," really is one of the handsomest women in the country. Eccentric makeups are her specialty, however, and she shares with May Robson the reputation of being one of the cleverest character impersonators in America. This attraction is now playing to prosperous business at the auditorium in Baltimore and will go to Washington City for a week after its engagement in this city.

SOCIETY

A Beautiful Home Wedding.

One of the prettiest home weddings devisable occurred last evening at the home of Captain and Mrs. Thomas Reed, on Benoni avenue, when their daughter, Miss Pearl, became the bride of Mr. Charles D. Wise of this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. D. Smith, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, at seven o'clock, in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends. The impressive ring ceremony was used and while the solemn vows were being taken the intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana was being softly rendered by piano and violin. Lo-hengrin's wedding march was given for the entrance of the bridal party and Traumerel pealed triumphantly at the close of the final prayer. Mrs. Roy A. Lough presided at the piano and was accompanied by Prof. T. J. Shaw on the violin.

The bride had no attendants but Miss Clara Boydston stood at her left and received her bouquet during the latter part of the services. She looked the ideal bride in an exquisite gown of point d'esprit, with dainty shirrings of lace and ribbon, made en train over white taffeta and carrying a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses. She also wore a tulle veil, whose value was enhanced because her mother had worn it when a bride years ago. The groom was in full evening dress and the happy couple stood in strong relief to an artistic background of gorgeous autumn leaves. Beautiful vines and their rioting color made the library in which the ceremony took place a veritable bower of loveliness. Festooned from picture moulding and heavily draped over and from doors, mantle piece and chandelier were vines and leaves such as only this month produces in all their perfection, while the triple windows at the side of the room, before which the bridal party stood, were one glowing mass of color.

When congratulations and good wishes had been abundantly lavished upon the bride and groom dainty refreshments were offered, after which the bride slipped away to don her traveling dress of blue broadcloth with becoming hat to match, and a little later they were driven to the station where they boarded No. 4 for a trip to the eastern cities. They refused to tell their exact destination but hosts of good wishes follow them wherever they go. A large party of their friends accompanied them to the depot and showered rice upon them as long as the opportunity allowed. Their trunks as well as the cab in which they drove to the station was adorned with white ribbon and old shoes, while explicit instructions were written in white chalk over all available space on the trunk.

Many handsome pieces of cut glass, silver and china bore testimony to the regard of their friends.

The bride is so well known here, having lived in this city all her life, that it almost unnecessary to state that she has always been a very popular girl and one of whom it can be truly said that she makes a friend of every acquaintance. Possessed of so many lovable qualities there are hosts to wish her God speed in her new life and invoke for her all the good things in this life.

Mr. Wise also stands very high in the regard of all who know him. He has been a resident of this city for over three years, having come here from Canton, Ohio, and since his stay in Fairmont has won the entire respect of the business and social community. He holds the responsible position of chief engineer for the Monongah Coal Company, or ex-Senator Camden's interest.

Among the out of town guests present at the wedding were Mrs. J. H. Kaufman and little daughter, Eleanor.
